just search your simple innocence and that is the mirror... not knowing...yet it knows all... it reflects all in its ultimate purity unclouded...weightless... that state is bliss that state is ecstasy that state is the state of nomind it is so ordinarily simple... when you get the taste of innocence then life is a beautiful mystery and your not knowing is your wisdom your not knowing is the sky do not underestimate what you do not know what you do not know is your mystery do not try to know your mystery celebrate your innocence everything is perfect you see ?

we are here gathered... everything is perfect just see the beauty understand deeply what i am trying to convey to you because it is utterly simple

> how to say it to you? just remember the mirror reflecting everything passing by it does not know anything it does not even know that it is reflecting hence it is free touching the world and nothing is touching it the mirror sees the world but it does not touch anything everything simply moves on and that seeing eye remains silent and still question

how to bring up the kids ? how to grow this seed of innocence and how not to kill it ? because we are killing this feeling... how to support the children ?

> how to bring up children? do not bring them up ! you do not need to pull children up... they are already growing !! you become like them...

i am just joking

do not take me serious ever i know what you are saying ... i am just joking i do not like to give any answers i am not here to answer anything at all i have given up all answers i do not even try to give you an answer i just speak some rubbish just to pass that question away this is the problem...

of course the world is out there you need to know something to grow and fight in the world how many weapons do you want to give your children ? mathematics...geography...history...science...economics... these are all weapons...different tools... to be able to fight in the world and succeed

how to bring up children?
let them be and watch how they are growing which part of them do you want to bring up?
their physical body ? just feed them food...
their mental body ? leave them alone...
their emotional body ? give them love...
